

P127. CASE REPORT: ENDOMETRIOSIS IN FALLOPIAN TUBES AND ECTOPIC PREGNANCY. SUPERVISOR: DRA MARIA DA CONCEIÇÃO RIBEIRO SIMÕES -GINECOLOGISTA-OBSTETRA -SUPERVISORA DO PROGRAMA DE RESIDÊNCIA MÉDICA DE OBSTETRÍCIA E GINECOLOGIA DO HOSPITAL DE BASE DR ARY PINHEIRO.

Baratella B M (BR) [1], Ribeiro Simões M (BR) , Sousa J D (BR) [2], Linhares D C (BR) [3]

Context: Patient attended at the Obstetric Center of the Hospital of Base Dr Ary Pinheiro with complaint of menstrual delay and pain in the right iliac fossa with signs of peritonitis.

Objective: To report a clinical case.

Methods: Medical records.

Patient (s): Patient at 36 years of age, third pregnancy, being the first normal delivery and with a history of previous abortion, presented gestational age at 5 weeks and 4 days by the date of the last menstruation.

Intervention (s): During hospitalization carried out investigation procedure by imaging and surgical.

Main result Measure (s):

Performed laparotomy due to acute hemorrhagic abdomen.

Outcome (s): Ultrasonography reports hemoperitoneum and ectopic pregnancy in left attachment and signs of endometriosis attached right.

Conclusions: A patient admitted in a hospital of high complexity with signs of acute hemorrhagic abdomen without hemodynamic repercussion evolved to diagnose ectopic pregnancy associated to a focus of grade 4 endometriosis.

[1] Hospital de base Dr Ary Pinheiro, [2] Médica residente em Ginecologia e Obstetrícia do Hospital de Base Dr Ary Pinheiro, [3] Médico Ginecologista e Obstetra do Hospital de Base Dr Ary Pinheiro